Passage - 1

Do birds know how to come back home after a long flight? Bird scientists, known as ornithologists, say that birds know exactly where they are and where their nests are. Even the young ones can fly hundreds of nautical miles without losing their way. How do they do it? God has given them a tremendous sense of direction; possibly they have a compass of sorts in their brain. Every year, we can see birds from North India fly to the South. In India we have several bird sanctuaries where birds from both parts of the globe come, spend a few months and return when the climatic situations in their homeland are more favourable.

Passage - 2

A blind reverence for the past is bad and so also is a contempt for it, for no future can be founded on either of these. The present and the future inevitably grow out of the past and bear its stamp, and to forget this is to build without foundations and to cut off the roots of national growth. It is to ignore one of the most powerful forces that influences people. Nationalism is essentially the memory of past achievements, traditions, and experiences; and nationalism is stronger today than it has ever been. Many people thought that nationalism had its day and must inevitably give place to ever-growing international tendencies of the modern world. Yet whenever a crisis has arisen, nationalism has emerged again, and dominated the scene, and people have sought comfort and strength in their old traditions. 4×5
